Mr. O'Neal Is Back Again 565 Bucks Get a Chauffeur

ON February 10, 1937, N. P. O'Neal, after a week of editorial attacks by this newspaper, published in these columns for all the people to see a letter in which he stated he was having Representative John Vesey withdraw a legislative bill which aimed to give Mr. O'Neal $565 damages against the state government because of a motor accident Mr. O'Neal had sustained near Batesville.

That's what Mr. O'Neal did publicly.
But here's what he is doing not-so-publicly—a small item under "Capitol News" on page 13 of the Arkansas Gazette for Thursday, January 20:
"The State Claims Commission took under consideration claims against the state for $18,067.97 at its semi-monthly meeting yesterday (Wednesday). No claims were acted on. . . . N. P. O'Neal of Hope filed a claim for $565 as damages to his car in a 1935 accident alleged to have been caused by an error in a road sign."
If Mr. O'Neal collects this outrageous claim against the public treasury it will be because this newspaper can't stop it legally or politically. One law, at least in America, is supposed to cover both the rich and the poor; and Mr. O'Neal might as well get used to it.

Small Grower to Be Aided by New Cotton Measure

Receive Special Treatment Under Ever-Normal Granary Bill

DAIRYING QUARREL South Challenges Ban Against Diversion to Dairying, Livestock

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Small cotton growers will receive special treatment under the ever-normal granary program, two legislators said Thursday. Senator Smith (Dem., S. C.) and Representative Doney (Dem., Miss.) members of the joint congressional committee working on the new farm program, said growers who cultivated an average of five acres or less during the past five years, would receive more than their proportionate share of acreage allotments.

He said drafters of the proposed program for this year contemplated a "10,000,000-bale floor and 11,500,000-bale ceiling."

Smith explained that after a farmer receives his acreage allotment "he can market all the cotton he grows on that acreage." He said that this explained why production might vary between 10,000,000 and 11,500,000 bales.

Supplies at Constant Level
The cotton program is designed to keep total supplies at a constant level equal to average annual production for domestic consumption and exports during the past 10 years (about 13,000,000 bales) thus a reserve or carry-over of 40 per cent (about 5,200,000 bales). When indicated supplies are seven per cent above this point, or more than 15,500,000 bales, cotton growers will vote on applying a reduction program. The program will go into effect if two-thirds voting approve.

A production "goal" of 10,000,000 bales would be set up for this year. This production would be divided among states. Then it would be converted into acreage, on a basis of average production for the past five years, and divided among counties and farms. Five per cent of the acreage within each state would be used to adjust quotas where droughts have caused inequality of production, where new lands have developed, and to increase quotas for farmers cultivating five acres or less.

In addition to this 5 per cent a special quota of 600,000 bales for this year would be allotted on a national basis for these same purposes.

"Up to Farmers"
Doney said the conference had left the matter of compulsory control "up to the farmers."

"If they want it this year they can vote for it," he said.
The senate had provided for a compulsory program this year, while the house measure delayed it until next year.

Sellers of cotton in excess of quotas would be penalized two cents a pound, or $10 a bale this year, and three cents a pound or $30 a bale thereafter.

Unemployment End of Social Security Is Described Here

Tax on Employers' Payrolls 3% for 1938, Collins Tells Rotary

A FIVE-YEAR TEST

Merit Rating of Employers Will Begin After Test Period

The threefold nature of Social Security was explained to Hope Rotary club Friday noon by Eli Collins, public relations counselor for the Arkansas State Department of Labor, which administers the unemployment compensation part of Social Security.

"There are three divisions of Social Security," Mr. Collins said. "First, there is the system of unemployment benefits, paid jointly out of the general funds of the federal and state governments for the relief of old age, the sick and the blind. This part of Social Security has nothing to do with payroll taxes.

"Second, there is the system of earned old-age benefits which is popularly known as Social Security. This division is administered entirely by the federal government. It is supported by an income tax of one per cent on private wage-earners, matched by another one per cent excise tax paid by employers. The government guarantees the worker a return of 3 1/2 per cent on these funds in old-age benefits or pensions.

Unemployment Fund
"Third, there is the unemployment compensation division, which is administered jointly by federal and state governments. This division is supported by an excise tax on employers alone.

"The tax fixed by the federal law was one per cent in 1936, two per cent in 1937, becomes three per cent for 1938, and remains at three per cent for the balance of the five-year trial period—when taxes will be adjusted according to the merit of the individual employer, whether he has kept most of his people constantly employed, or forced them to draw unemployment benefits.

"This tax on employers, where there are eight or more workers, is paid 10 per cent to the federal government and 90 per cent to the state. Employers of one to seven workers pay slightly less than employers of eight or more, because the Arkansas state law claims only the 90 per cent allowed under the federal statute.

"Therefore today, for 1938, employers of less than eight persons pay 2 1/2% of their total payroll to the state government, while employers of eight or more pay 2 1/2% to the state and 3% to the federal government, making a total of 5 1/2% tax on payrolls.

"Furthermore, the purpose of unemployment compensation is not only to pay benefits but also to help labor find private employment, and machinery is being set up to that end."

Deadline of Age
Mr. Collins went on to relate that the unemployment problem had been unconsciously aggravated by the fact that many large private companies have pension systems whose successful operation requires that workers be taken on while relatively young. He told of one company that set a deadline of 35 years as the oldest that any new employee would be hired.

Similar regulations are found in some departments of government, Mr. Collins continued; and when there is added to this burden of unemployed persons 45 and older, the burden of young school graduates who also are unable to find jobs, and to pay benefits where jobs are unavoidably lost.

Another guest Friday was John Greene, of Little Rock, Hope native and past president of the local club. Mr. Collins' program was presented by A. A. Allbritton.

A suspect arrested early Thursday morning in the series of residential robberies in Hope was released from the city jail Friday after officers said they were convinced that the prisoner had no connection with the thefts.

Officers said they no new theft cases were reported to them. No clues toward solution of nearly a dozen other cases had been uncovered.

Pennsylvania Invites Discipline of Speeders

HARRISBURG, Pa.—(AP)—Pinching Pennsylvanians may become a national pastime for obliging policemen.

Pennsylvania has asked for it, and the replies of other states were pouring in Thursday promising co-operation.

J. Griffith Boardman, secretary of revenue, asked other states to arrest Pennsylvania motorists who violate speed laws. He urged the state to revoke for 90 days the driving licenses of the speeders. That is a penalty, he said, that Pennsylvania motorists face at home. In return Pennsylvania will expect to aid in extending to out-of-state drivers the penalties for using Pennsylvania's highways as speedways.

Shakeup in State Police, Pen, Is Near

Little Rock Newspaper Hears Albright Is Slated "to Go"

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—The Arkansas Democrat said Friday "usually reliable sources" reported that Gray Albright would be removed as chief of state police, and that Al Reed, now superintendent of the state penal system, would be named as his successor.

The State Police Commission was to meet with Governor Bailey Friday afternoon. Officials declined to comment on the purpose of the meeting.

The Democrat said Bob LaFollette, assistant state police chief, "also is slated to go, in line with Governor Bailey's reorganization program. At least two other members of the department may tender their resignations."

The newspaper mention Dallas Dalton, of Arkadelphia, present chairman of the State Penal Board, as a possible successor to Reed.

Only 31,000 Cars Remain Untested

State Police Continuing Roundup of Untested Vehicles

LITTLE ROCK.—State Police are having difficulties discovering motorists who have failed to submit their cars for inspection as required by state law, Chief Gray Albright said Thursday in correcting an estimate of delinquents as published Wednesday.

The unofficial estimate was 100,000 or more but Albright said the total probably would not be more than 31,000 after deductions are allowed.

The larger total was arrived at by deducting the 141,000 cars inspected from the total number of registrations, or 242,000.

Albright said 5,000 cars had been inspected and had not been returned for approval; 15,000 used cars are on dealers' lots awaiting buyers and are not subject to inspection; another 20,000 are believed to be housed in rural garages, with their owners storing them until June or July when a half-year license can be purchased; another 10,000 are in the 10 counties lacking testing stations and approximately 20,000 trailers are not subject to inspection.

Adding the deductions furnished Chief Albright a total of 191,000 leaving an estimated 31,000 delinquents.

Falling Birthrate Menace to Farm Products' Market

Wealth and Population Both Being Concentrated in Cities

LESS MILK NEEDED

Fewer Children Is Cause, Speaker Tells County Agents Here

By FRANCES STANLEY

Assistant Editor, Extension Service
Concentration of wealth, a lesser demand for farm products, and an increasing number of old people are some of the implications of the declining birth rate, said Dr. O. E. Baker, senior agricultural economist, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Friday at the conference here of southwest Arkansas county extension agents.

"The volume of wealth in this country is possessed by people of the middle class, and it is here that the birth rate is most rapidly declining. The family estate will be inherited by one child instead of several, and through marriage, the wealth of two families will be concentrated in one.

"Already the decline in the number of children under 10 years of age has affected the demand for milk. Population trends now forecast a declining population within 50 years, and other farm products will begin to suffer."

Birth Rate Falling
"The birth rate is falling more rapidly in the cities than in the country. Urban culture does not encourage large families. In the city, the individual rather than the family is the economic unit. The income of young people, particularly in the professional classes, is low, and the cost of rearing children is high. Many young people who want to raise a family are unable to find employment. In fact, only half of the young people between the ages of 16 and 24 who wish to work are able to find work. Here it seems that the interests of the nation run counter to the interests of the individual family, which is not willing or is unable to bear the cost of rearing children."

Dr. Baker paid high tribute to the home-made homes campaign sponsored by the Extension Service of the University of Arkansas College of Agriculture, and also the recently proposed plan to assist young people to establish themselves on farms. "You are recognizing here the fundamental needs of people, to make a living, to have a home and raise children, and to have a philosophy of life that can guide them through times of prosperity and through times of misfortune. In this campaign there is a philosophy of work, beauty, thrift, private property, liberty, pride, and love of the family and home. I place my faith in the rural people, who recognize the family as the stabilizing factor in our civilization. This campaign is one of the most hopeful things I have seen, and I wish you success."

Dr. Baker will speak again Saturday on the subject of broadening the live-at-home program.

The farm unit demonstrations set up by the Extension Service in 45 counties in the state will result in higher standards of living, said J. B. Daniels, extension specialist in farm management. "These demonstrations bring all applicable extension recommendations together on the farm and in the home. It considers, and makes specific recommendations for use of land, labor, and capital to give the greatest economic advantage over a period of years."

Million Acres Idle
"One million acres of our land in this state is idle each year. This demonstration calls for the use of every acre for the best purpose. In row crop farming, the farmer uses his labor productively only 6 months of the year, and few men are able to make a living for their families at a half-time job. This demonstration plans enterprises to distribute labor and income throughout the year, and to increase the labor income."

A discussion of farm and home plans made in the farm unit demonstrations was given by Mrs. Ida A. Fontenot, economist in home management. Miss Melva Bullington, Hempstead county home demonstration agent, and Philip Anderson, Miller county agent, reported the results of the unit demonstrations in their counties.

Community activities as a means of teaching higher standards and broadening rural life was discussed by Miss June Donahue, extension specialist in community activities.

The 100,000 demonstrations in improved farm and home practices carried out in 1937 by 60,000 4-H club boys and girls in the state is a major contribution toward the raising of rural standards, W. J. Jernigan, state 4-H club agent, said in discussing 4-H club work. "The development of leadership and initiative among these young people will be far reaching in its influence."

Aubrey Gates, extension specialist in farm organization stressed the need for

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Senator Lee (Dem., Okla.) told the National Rivers and Harbors Congress Thursday he believed the federal government should adopt a permanent public works program to provide work for large numbers of unemployed made jobless by technological advancement.

He said the works program should include flood control and soil conservation activities, which he said were interrelated, adding "Flood control should start at the source."

Robert Fechner, director of the Civilian Conservation Corps, endorsed a suggestion by Lee that soil conservation camps be expanded. He also appealed for continuation of the CCC.

Jap Puppet State for China Planned

"Lawrence of Manchuria" Rounding New Government Into Shape

By the Associated Press
Japan's "Lawrence of Manchuria" was reported at Shanghai Friday to be setting up a puppet regime to govern the conquered heart of China.

Chinese sources declared Lieutenant General Kenji Doihara, political manipulator for the Japanese army, whose efforts launched the dismemberment of Manchuria and North China, was bringing in an "acceptable" Chinese to rule the Shanghai-Nanking area.

France decreed the continuation of all her army, naval and air forces Friday—a measure usually adopted only in war-time.

Spanish Rebels Gain
HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier.—(AP)—The Spanish insurgent army threw its aerial strength into the battle for Teruel Friday, after two air raids on important government supply depots which in two days brought death or injury to hundreds.

The aerial maneuvers added insurgent troops in fresh advances, which the Spanish government admitted included occupation of El Maltón hill on Teruel's western front, 160 miles east of Madrid.

France Aroused
PARIS.—(AP)—Diplomatic quarters said Thursday night that France would ask for "details" regarding an attempted landing by Japanese marines on the island of Hainan, which commands the sea approach to the northern part of French Indo-China. The Navy Ministry announced that three French cruisers were steaming from Saigon, Indo-China capital, to Tourane.

Tourane is the nearest large Indo-Chinese port to the southern tip of Hainan where the Japanese attempted to land.

A Foreign Office spokesman said he "believed" the Japanese attempt was "only to get water."

Confirmation of the Japanese operation said that 200 marines tried to land Wednesday in the bay of Yulin in the southern part of Hainan. They were protected by three warships and an airplane but heavy fire from Chinese forces ashore obliged them to return to their ships.

The Navy Ministry's announcement said the cruisers Georges Leygues, Gloire and Montcalm left Saigon Wednesday for Tourane.

A French request for details from Japan would be based on the Franco-Japanese treaty of 1907 by which each nation pledged she would not change

NOW IN 14TH DAY

Auto Manufacturers Endorse Limiting of Installment Credit

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Democratic Leader Barkley served notice in the senate Friday he would call for night sessions beginning Monday in an effort to break the filibuster against the anti-lynching bill.

Barkley took the floor at the outset of Friday's session, the 14th which the senate has devoted to the anti-lynching bill, to warn that other measures were coming along rapidly and that disposition must be made of the pending bill.

Chairman Smith, South Carolina Democrat, reported agreement by the joint congressional committee on "all major details" of the ever-normal granary program.

Smith said the committee probably would have the bill ready for final congressional action "next Thursday or Friday."

Leading automobile manufacturers announced after a White House conference Friday that they were in "hearty agreement" with President Roosevelt's principles regarding installment buying of automobiles.

The president recently complained that auto dealers were oversteering the market by telling customers prices were going up, and also granting more liberal credit terms.

No definite figures were mentioned Friday.

John D. Biggers, unemployment census director, urged Friday the creation of an emergency agency to supply co-operative planning for re-employment.

This agency should represent all groups involved—legislative, executive, labor, industry, agriculture—Biggers told the senate committee which is investigating the unemployment situation.

Bombing Attempt on Japanese Liner

But Man Swimming Out to Ship With Bomb Loses His Own Life

SEATTLE, Wash.—(AP)—A laborer's story of a bomb plot against the Japanese liner Hiye Maru caused hasty removal of the ship from the Seattle waterfront Thursday and police searched for planted explosives after finding the floating body of another alleged conspirator.

Workers fled from the wharf as police spread the warning and the 11,621-ton vessel was moved 300 feet offshore.

Police Capt. Marshall C. Scrafford said that George Partridge, 22, declared that a friend had offered him $1,000 to help plant a bomb aboard the ship. Partridge said "some Oriental government" hired the other man to plant the bomb.

Scrafford reported Partridge said he helped the friend wire a clock for a time bomb and then aided him in attempting to float it to the ship late Wednesday night. Partridge told police he and his companion took the bomb in a suitcase to the water's edge under the wharf; that the friend robbed, put the suitcase on a railroad tie and started to swim to the ship's side, pushing the tie. Partridge said he never saw his companion alive again.

Six hours after Partridge was arrested a Japanese seaman saw the body of a man floating near the ship. The body was nude except for a life-jacket.

Officers said Partridge identified the body as that of his friend, a 35-year-old Vancouver (B. C.) school teacher. Partridge, who described himself as a laborer from Vancouver, said the other man had given him $35 in Vancouver last week.

Scrafford expressed belief that the bomb, if any, had fallen from the railroad tie and sunk. Police found clothing, apparently that of the man in the water, under the wharf.

Facing Music Will Cure Hit-Run Evil

A PRIME example of the manner in which a man may make a snap decision, influenced by fear, and regret it the rest of his life, occurred recently in Cleveland, O.

About 8:30 one evening, the unconscious form of a 24-year-old woman was found lying in the middle of a residential street. The motorist who struck her apparently had stopped to investigate, then, in sudden panic, had fled the scene.

Next morning, a local newspaper received a postcard, on which had been printed these words in crude letters:

"DEAR SIR: PLEASE PRINT IN YOUR LETTER COLUMN AND TELL ME WHAT WILL HAPPEN TO ME. LAST NITE I ACCIDENTLY RUN DOWN A LADY IF WASNT MY FAULT OFFOF TAYLOR ROAD. I GOT A FAMILY TO FEER AND GOT A JOB LAST WEEK. I CANT LOSE IT. I GOT TO KNOW WHAT HAPPENED. SHE SCREAMED AWFUL. I BEEN WANDERING THREE HOURS."

The man who wrote that letter could have picked up the limp body of that girl, taken her to the hospital and reported to police with his explanation.

But he didn't. He had only a few seconds in which to decide a course of action. Blinded by panic, he ran away.

Now he is a fugitive criminal. Unless he surrenders he will be haunted by aching fear to the end of his life. The fact that the accident may have been unavoidable means nothing to him now. He broke the law by leaving the scene.

The newspaper and police officials published appeals to the driver to "step forward and be a man." They pointed out that the girl would recover and said they would listen sympathetically to his story. But up to the time this is written he had not made known his identity.

THE lesson to be learned is, of course, that every person should prepare himself for just such an emergency by determining in advance to do the manly and decent thing in case of accident. Humans cannot always trust themselves to make correct decisions on a split second's notice.

How much better for this man if he had decided long ago that if he ever became involved in such an accident, he would scorn flight, render all possible assistance, and keep his conscience clear by facing the music like a man.

Americans have been all too prone, in the last couple of decades, to try to "beat the rap" every time they get into trouble, whether it be a parking violation or murder. Isn't it about time citizens took on another cargo of common decency and honesty?

Unseen Tax Toll

THE Detroit Board of Commerce has compiled a list of 47 days on which many Michigan business men will have tax matters to attend to in 1938. These days include the dates for returns and payments on federal income taxes, state and county property taxes, sales, unemployment and other taxes and the returns that accompany them.

That indicates one source of tax drains that never show up in the figures—the cost of paying them. Every firm of any size has had to hire men whose duty is exclusively to see that tax returns are filed and payments made on time.

Even individuals and small businesses must devote an increasing amount of their time to the mechanics of tax payment. In many cases the burden of computing the taxes is greater than the burden of payment.

Every possible simplification of this business of paying taxes is a real tax reduction without depriving the governments concerned of any needed revenue. For the time, energy and trouble spent in preparing returns, making reports, and actually making payments, is a dead loss all around, hampering the payer without adding to the amount received by government.

Rest, Good Care and Sympathy Needed When Women Undergo Physical Change

(No. 429)
Between the ages of 45 and 50 the average woman undergoes certain physical changes which often cause considerable concern. Occasionally these changes occur before the age of 45 and, in rare instances, in the thirties. In other cases they are delayed until after 50 years of age and very rarely after 55.

Since these changes are definitely associated with the functions of the glands, an abnormally early onset of the condition or an exceedingly late onset is probably associated with some changes in the functions of these glands.

In the process there are definite changes which occur in the organs associated with childbirth. Since these organs are no longer to function normally, they begin to shrink, becoming shorter and smaller, and the periodic manifestation of their functioning also disappears.

In some women all of these changes take place suddenly and abruptly and without much trouble. In many cases, however, they take place gradually over intervals of months or even years.

In some cases the amount of bleeding may be excessive, and for this reason it is advisable for every woman to have a good general physical examination with special reference to the organs that are affected by the change. At the same time those who are associated with her in the household should realize that she is undergoing a change and should conduct themselves accordingly.

Most of the serious symptoms which occur involve the nervous system and the blood. It is not uncommon for women at such times to be irritable, depressed and to find sleep difficult. There will be sudden periods of flushing of the entire body, associated with periods of perspiration and chilliness.

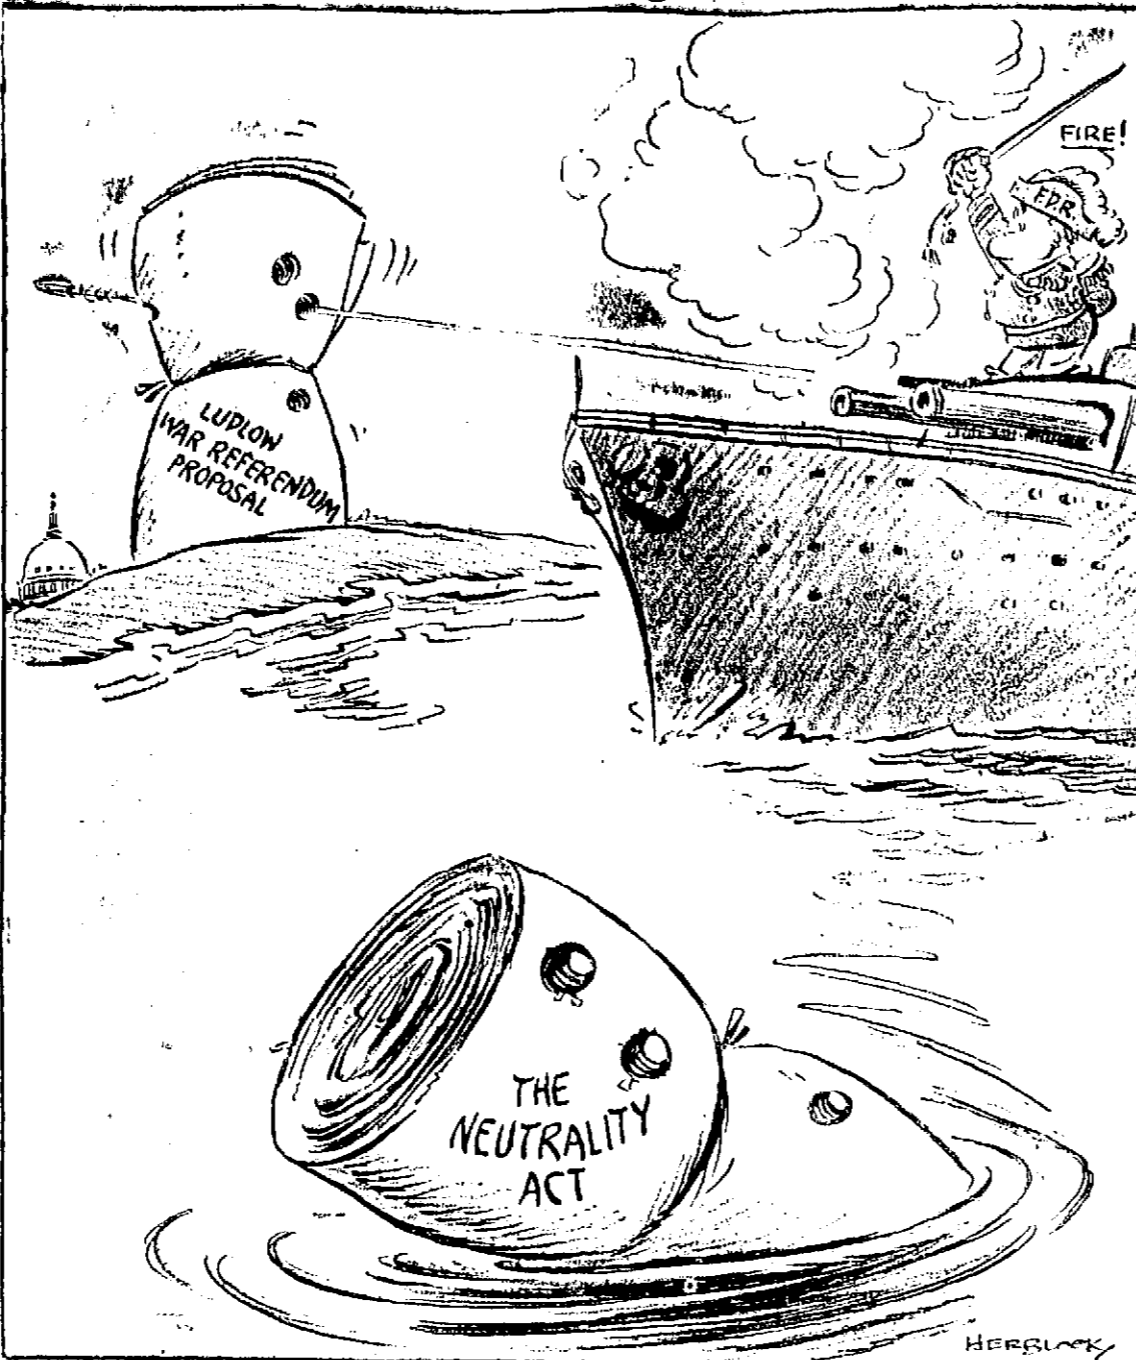

These flushings come on at any time, sometimes without any apparent cause and on other occasions associated with slight excitement. Because of the change in the circulation associated with the flushing, there may be palpitation, headache or dizziness.

Recent discoveries have developed glandular products which a physician may prescribe at such times and which seem to be exceedingly helpful to a great many women. Since these products are potent for harm as well as for good, they are not to be taken except under prescription by a physician.

Many women tend suddenly to put on excessive weight at these times because of the decreased functioning of the gland of the body. An examination will show that possibility and the prescribing of glandular materials in which the body is deficient may help to regulate the weight.

In case bleeding is excessive, prompt treatment is necessary, including rest in bed and suitable control of such bleeding.

Traffic Peril Makes "Tough Sledding"

If grown-ups owned as many dangerous playthings as children, perhaps we would make more laws about these fun makers. One reason why father won't allow Johnny to run the car from the garage to the front door is because he knows the danger of a car.

But when it comes to sleds, parents are not always so careful. Out goes the boy or girl, calling a goodbye, and usually all the warning he gets is a general "Be careful, dear, and don't go to any dangerous place." Not even that, perhaps.

Particularly dangerous are the "glazed" days, when rain has fallen on frozen ground and becomes a sheet of ice over road, street and sidewalk. At such times, even the aptest safety of a sledtrack is missing, and the child is tempted to try the unsaid. Moreover, when days are short and deceiving twilight betrays the after-school sledder, car lights not being turned on, there is double hazard.

Toll Perils Privilege

Here is one case when parents should lay down law without any exceptions. If the toll of life repeats the history of last year—not particularly snowy, but icy and unpredictable—cities and towns soon will be refusing to allow sled riding within municipal limits.

However, not all the danger exists in cities. I still shudder when I think of one evening two years ago, as rounding a sharp curve in our car, a small figure on a sled appeared almost

Night Is Worst Hazard

It is a pity to deprive children of their rightful winter thrills, and who does not love a sled? Many communities have off hills streets today, and the inconvenienced citizens take it all in good spirit. These are about the only safe places left, they realize, so the park their cars two blocks distant and walk the rest of the way. So far so good, but some day, I fear, if too many parents make the rope of permissiveness too long, any sled riding out of prescribed limits will be considered bootlegged, and fines will be imposed for infractions.

I am sure that many parents are not fully aware of sled dangers today. A child interested in the sensation of speed, down flat on his stomach, won't be very alert to the dark forms of cars. Some will be wary, of course, but small children don't. All children are going to pay the price of complete denial, unless more parents awaken to their own responsibility and keep their offspring away from traffic and permit sledding only in daylight hours.

Theater on Upswing, Says Nathan

If you have been shedding salt tears over the decline and approaching death of the American theater, you have the word of the eminent dramatic critic George Jean Nathan that your grief has been misplaced.

Far from being dead or dying, says Mr. Nathan, the American theater today "has suddenly become recognized as being the most promisingly vital of the world's playhouses." It is encouraging the best; talented writers are giving their best to it, intelligent producers are active in it, and it is characterized today by enthusiasm, imagination and courage.

Mr. Nathan makes this comment in the preface to his new book, "The Morning After the First Night," (Knopf, $2.50). He admits candidly that a reading of his book may leave one with a feeling that a great many things are very badly wrong with the American theater—for Mr. Nathan was never one to pull his punches.

But he is actuated, he says, by a pessimism of the old Yankee skipper's ideal—to keep the theater right, if it be right, and to set it right if it be wrong.

That being said, Mr. Nathan sails in, and the result is some lively and frequently instructive reading. Some of it, to be sure, you have heard before—and from Mr. Nathan himself. It is not, for instance, especially surprising to hear him saying that Hollywood is "ten million dollars worth of intricate and highly ingenious machinery functioning elaborately to put skin on balcony."

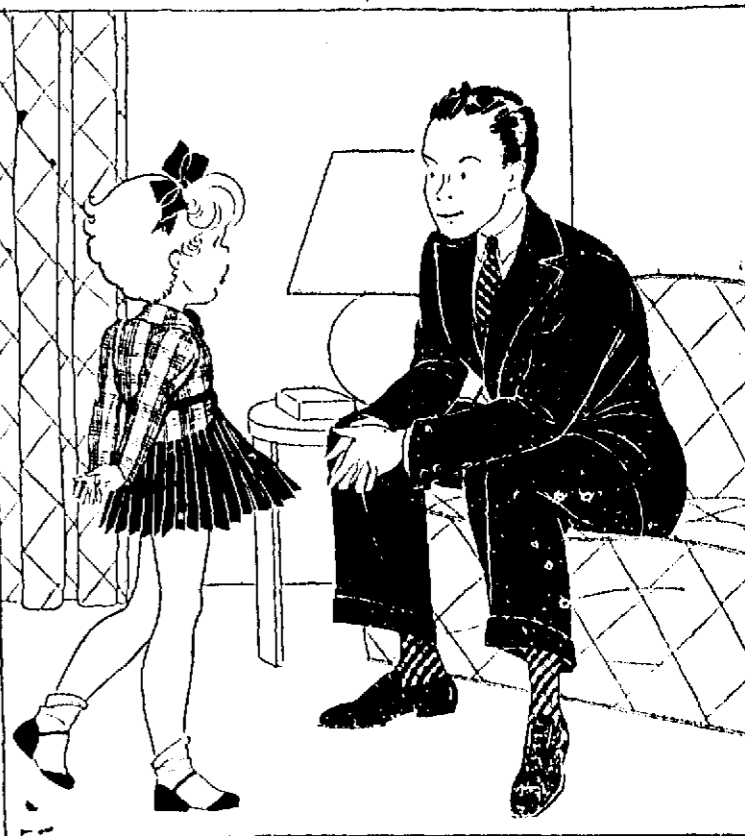

However, there is plenty of meat in the book, and whatever it may be it never is dull. If you have the slightest interest in the theater you will find it well worth reading.

under our wheels. A friend, less fortunate, brought her car to a sickening stop, knowing that a bay had darted under her wheels from a lily side street. The child died and she has never driven a car since.

Then there was the entrancing evening recently when the city was a glare of lights with their inevitable shadows. Traffic was brick at five o'clock, but while mothers were inside getting zippers, out among the murderous wheels children were zigzagging between cars. Some were sure to be hurt, and the paper next day reported two casualties in that same neighborhood.

Everyone Pulls for Dolores in Movie Come-Back Attempt

HOLLYWOOD—Dolores Costello has come back to celluloid, and everybody from the watchman at the gates to the toughest director on the sets is wishing her luck.

A stroll with her across the Warner lot at noontime offers proof enough of what old-timers think of the blue-eyed, golden-haired actress who quit pictures seven years ago at the crest of her stardom.

Prop men, electricians, wardrobe women, hairdressers, cameramen—all of them greet her, and in turn are hailed by their first names.

They also look back, some of them, to the years of "The Sea Beast," "Glorious Betsy," "Hearts in Exile," and "Naah's Ark," and they wonder, naturally, whether any such triumphs are in store for the future. The comeback road is hard.

Prettier Than Ever
Miss Costello's chances seem better than those of other dimmed stars because, for one thing, she went out voluntarily. And for another reason, because she hasn't changed in appearance, unless favorably. At 32 she's younger than many a current feminine star and still can play romantic leads.

It's a romantic lead she has in "Girls on Probation," a picture which she describes as dealing with "a select reformatory." Originally intended only as an unassuming little program piece, it has turned out so well that the studio has boosted it into the A rating.

When Miss Costello retired, it was to devote herself to her children, her land and home, believing that one actor in the family was enough. But the actor didn't remain in the family very long. After the divorce from John Barrymore she continued in retirement, traveling a good deal and spending her time with Dolores Ethel Mae Barrymore, now 7, and John Blythe Barrymore, 5.

Manages Own Affairs
In 1936 Miss Costello emerged from the role of Freddie Bartholomew's mother in "Little Lord Fauntleroy." She followed it with only one picture, a very bad one called "Yours for the Asking," which she entered unwillingly.

Afterward she traveled again, returning last summer and buying a substantial home in Los Angeles, well removed from Hollywood and Beverly Hills.

Hills.
"I've kept busy managing my business affairs," she said. "Do it all myself and really find it fun."

"The children?" Well, from the way they're always acting, I'd judge they're bound for the screen eventually. But I'm trying not to influence them in any way until they want to make a choice. Why, only a few weeks ago they asked me if I was ever a movie actress. They hadn't known."

Dolores Was No Whale
Miss Costello was an actress when she was their age, playing little boy roles. Later she became a model, danced in Broadway shows, and was brought to Hollywood by Warner Brothers for "The Sea Beast."

Barrymore, also cast in that adaptation of "Moby Dick," was concerned lest the picture should have no romantic interest. He pointed out that it just wouldn't do for him to marry a whale.

But the scenarioists put in plenty of heart throbs and pretty soon Barrymore found himself actually marrying the leading lady.

She was popular at once, and became the star of pictures directed by the newly-imported Michael Curtiz.

Once She Didn't Laugh
At first Curtiz couldn't speak a word of English, but he could swear in German. He learned to speak English, but his truncheons seriously, as when he chased a terrified bearded lady all over the lot, but Miss Costello just laughed.

Only time she didn't laugh was one evening after an exhausting week of day-and-night work punctuated by the director's explosions.

She told him in three languages that he was wasting his talents on the wrong side of the camera—and then walked out.

The actress still is a little ashamed of that incident; says it was the only temperamental thing she ever did in her life.

During the coronation of King Edward VIII of England the King Archbishop of Canterbury placed the crown on the king's head backward. He trembled so from weakness that everyone feared he would drop the crown.

The Guardian Flower

The houses were far between on the road, and the tramp was hungry; a growing load of weariness pushed his shoulders down, and he hoped soon to find a town.

Then he saw a small white house on the hill. But when he reached it the place was still. They had gone away and locked the door.

No one answered his knock. Once more he tried, then walked around—and there.

One window was up a little to air a red geranium. . . just like the one his mother used to set in the sun before she died. How long ago.

And far away? He seemed to know. That only the flower made him pause—More than the fear of any law.

But he was young enough to sense more than his hunger. He stood there tense.

With surging memory and thought: And suddenly tears in his eyes were hot.

And he straightened his shoulders and turned away.

To the dusty road. There was nothing to say.

That the garden flower had not said.

And he walked up the road, looking straight ahead. Selected.

Healing the Sick
Text: Mark 1:29-35

The mother-in-law of Simon Peter, one of the fishermen who responded to the call of Jesus to become a disciple was sick with fever; and when Jesus came into the house of the two brothers, Simon Peter, and Andrew, He took the sick woman by the hand, raised her up, and restored her to such health that she was able to rise and minister to them.

The fame of this act of healing evidently spread abroad so quickly that, in the characteristic description of the lesson, "All the city was gathered together at the door." The record is that He healed many, but the next morning Jesus went off into a desert place and there prayed.

Simon Peter and the others of these early disciples were evidently greatly puzzled. They followed Jesus, and when they found Him they expressed their surprise in the words, "All are seeking Thee." But Jesus did not return with them to the city where these things had been done. He said, "Let us go on to the next towns, that I may preach there also; for to this point I have come." There is a great mystery attaching to the healing ministry of Jesus; not only the mystery that attaches to the miraculous or to the things that we cannot understand by reference to the known laws governing sickness and health.

Any honest investigator in this field knows that remarkable and seemingly inexplicable things occur. He is not likely to conclude that these inexplicable things are contrary to some law or process of nature or God. On the contrary, he is likely to see in these remarkable things the operation of some higher law of nature or the spiritual forces of life which man has not yet sufficiently explored or comprehended.

But the mystery of the ministering of Jesus to physical needs goes beyond this. The healing of the body is everywhere subordinate to His spiritual ministry and the healing of the soul. He is presented in the New Testament, in spite of all the miracle-lous records, not as a magician and wonder worker, but as a great Teacher and Savior, bringing to man the wonderful words of life, the forgiveness of sins, and the inspiration to righteousness and goodness.

If we could imagine a man of great power coming into our city today, with ability to minister health and restoration to sick and broken bodies, we should assume that he would exercise that ministry toward all who came, that he would regard that as a great privilege and opportunity, and that to the very limit of his physical powers he would receive all who came, and not escape to the desert while he still had the means and opportunity of healing the sick and restoring the blind and lame.

Why did Jesus not conceive His ministry as that of bodily healing? Why did He not bring health and restoration to all within His reach, as evidently He brought it to some? Why did He apparently minimize this ministry of physical healing, and always insist in some way that He had come to minister above all to the souls of men? Why did He constantly urge those whom He healed not to tell others about it, whereas some modern faith healers would be seeking the widest publicity?

We cannot answer these questions fully. But we must put the emphasis of the ministry of Jesus where He himself put it. He came to save men from their sin. Salvation is more than bodily health; it is the health and welfare of the soul.

For fifteen minutes at the beginning of the service, all musicians plans to be present at 7:15. Special singing also will be a feature of the Sunday night service.

The Man Who's Always First Writes --- His First Story!

A new bridge or tunnel is opened to traffic, Gates swing wide to welcome fans at a great sports event, A new wren or air liner arrives in port. A spectacular public celebration is staged. . . . And almost always the first in line, or the first ticket-holder, or the first aboard, or the first to arrive on the scene, is a slim, dark-complexioned young man named Omero C. Catan. Famed in the area about New York, at least—for his hobby of being FIRST at important public spectacles, Catan now has prepared for NEA Service the FIRST article he has ever written for publication.

By Omero C. Catan

NEW YORK—In this first paragraph I wish to state, first of all, that this is the first newspaper article I have ever written.

Many first page stories have been printed about my being the first person to have a hobby of being first at public affairs, but this is the first time some of my purely personal "firsts" have appeared.

I first saw the light of day in Brooklyn, 23 years ago. My first love came at the age of 10, when we lived in Waverly, Pa. She and I were in school together.

Incidentally, from the first, I've believed in love at first sight. I still expect some day to meet my "First Lady"—in other words, my wife. Of course, I may first fall in love with a divorced woman, which would mar my record.

Politics Hold First Place in Ambitions

My first ambition is to go into politics.

The first thing I would do in my first office would be to advocate a child labor amendment to the constitution. I think the first thing this country needs now is not exactly Fascism, but more real power in the President's hands.

I first registered as a Democrat, but I'm Independent. I first voted in 1935, but I can't remember for whom.

From my first step in politics, I expect to rise until I will be the first person of Italian ancestry to become the First Man of the land—in other words, President.

They've said I'm "not first in war, not first in peace, but first in the crowds of my countrymen." Which reminds me that the first thing people think is that I must regard George Washington as national hero No. 1. That's not so, despite his famous firstness in the hearts of his countrymen. I think T. R., President Roosevelt, the First, is my first ideal because he was the first President with courage to do things for the people.

Mayor LaGuardia is first among New York's mayors in my mind. I put a paid ad in the paper thanking God for his re-election. He's my first because he has made it possible for me to be first so many times, as he's always opening swimming pools, bridges, highways and such.

Bible Injunction Puzzles Him to Last

So far I have 225 "firsts" to my credit. My first "first" was in 1928 as first visitor aboard the Graf Zeppelin on its first trip here. On my last first I drove the first car through the new Lincoln Tunnel.

My next first depends on which of three highway projects I'm watching is finished first.

During this first part of my first career, lack of finances has confined me to the New York area. Otherwise I would have been first across the International Peace Bridge at Buffalo and across San Francisco's Golden Gate Bridge. The first thing I'll do when I'm financially able, is to tour the country, being first—first here and there.

Only one thing has me puzzled. I don't know what to do about the Biblical prediction that "the first shall be last."

TOP—Omero C. Catan registers another "first"—his FIRST story, written for this newspaper.
BOTTOM—Catan in the FIRST picture ever taken of him.

Shoe Dealers Hear of Good Business

Brownbilt Shoe Dealers Attend Spring Convention at St. Louis

Confidence of complete business recovery in 1938 was the theme of a convention of Brownbilt shoe dealers held at the Jefferson hotel in St. Louis this week and attended by Henry Hitt and Otha Taylor of Hope.

They returned home Friday from the meeting. Mr. Hitt said that styles for spring and summer foot wear were much in demand. He expressed the opinion that lower prices of hides and skins will create greater consumer values in spite of increased labor costs.

The convention was the most enthusiastic gathering of shoe dealers he ever attended, Mr. Hitt said.

Small Grower To

said he was "satisfied although I favored heavier penalties. If the majority of growers want control they should be protected from chiselers."

He said that non-co-operators, in addition to penalty on sales, faced loss of benefit payments and loans, as well as adjustment payments on the 1937 crop, conditioned on compliance this year.

"That will mean a penalty of about six cents a pound," Bankhead said.

Adjustments On 1937

Senator Smith said every cotton grower would receive a minimum allotment of five acres, unless he had cultivated less in recent years. In that case the allotment would be his largest acreage in recent years. He said growers "also should understand that they can collect the adjustment payments on the 1937 crop if cotton is under loan on July 1, 1938."

Smith said cotton growers may ask for reweighing, reclassification and restapling of loan cotton if loan agencies attempt to move it from the original warehouse.

Reweight Dairy Section

The "dairy amendment" to the farm bill will be rewritten so it will be "workable," members said.

The amendment declares that farmers who divert acreage from cotton, wheat, corn, rice or tobacco shall refrain from using the land to produce dairy articles—or any livestock. If farmers put their land to such use, they would be deprived of federal benefits.

Senator McGill (Dem., Kan.) and other administration leaders contend the provision would require officials to check on every cow, chicken and pig on every co-operating farm before paying benefits.

Southerners on the committee said the provision was contrary to the federal farm policy of encouraging Southern farmers to grow more feed and food.

"It is ridiculous," McGill said. "If

POLAND'S NEW PORT

DETERMINED to possess an all-Polish seaport, the Polish government in 1924 turned to the splendid natural site at the small fishing village of Gdynia. Until then most of the country's sea trade passed through Danzig. So basins were excavated and wharves constructed at Gdynia. In a short time the population leaped and trade leaped with it. Today the city is one of the greatest, busiest ports on the Baltic. Its population is 100,000. It was 500. Vessels of 40 lines make Gdynia a port of regular call today, linking it with at least 120 American and European ports. Out of the port Poland poured upwards of 7,000,000 tons of exports in the last year, chiefly coal, timber, beet sugar, grains and eggs. And the port is a seaside resort as well, attracting 15,000 vacationists last summer. Almost entirely of new construction, Gdynia has become Poland's modern metropolis. And shortly big guns to be erected on the white sand dunes of Hel Peninsula will make the port the site of strategic fortifications. Pride of Poland, the maritime terminal at Gdynia is shown on a 1934 stamp.

In the last half both teams did quite a bit of scoring, but always the Blevins team took the short end of the tally. The game was lively and interesting from beginning to end. The final score was 38 to 22 for the Badgers.

Razorbacks Easily Defeat Rice Team

Don Lockard Leads Cage Squad to 38 to 31 Victory

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark.—Don Lockard ran his conference scoring total up 18 points in leading the University of Arkansas basketball team to a 38-31 victory over the Rice Institute Owls before 2,100 fans at the new field house here Thursday night.

Lockard got five field goals in the first half and four in the second, dropping several almost unbelievable shots from all corners of the floor.

High scorer for Rice was Steakley, with four field goals and two free throws for 10 points.

Arkansas started slowly. After some haphazard playing early in the first half, marked by slipshod shooting, the Razorbacks came back to dazzle the fans as they overtook and passed the Owls and closed the half with an 18-12 lead.

The Porkers came back for the second half with some more of the same kind of basketball and widened the margin until well into the half when, with the second team on the floor, they slowed up and let the Owls come within seven points of them.

Capt. Lockard Outstanding

Outstanding were Lockard's floor shots, although the Parker captain failed to connect often in the first half. He more than made up for it, though, once he hit his stride, and had the partisan crowd screaming as he rimmed the basket while hemmed in by Rice guards.

The Arkansas floor work was excellent.

Braddock, Farr to Fight Ten Rounds

Winner Has Been Promised Battle With Max Baer

NEW YORK. (AP)—James J. Braddock, who used to be the heavyweight champion, and Tommy Farr who hopes to be, will meet in a 10-round bout in Madison Square Garden Friday night.

The winner has been promised a match with Max Baer, also an ex-champion. The eventual survivor may be sent against either Joe Louis or Max Schmeling late in the summer.

Braddock, making his first start since he stood against Louis in Chicago last June, is the sentimental favorite but the Welshman who stayed 15 rounds with Louis two months later, is the betting choice at 1 to 3.

Trainer Mike Jacobs says 15,000 fans will see the show and that the gate will net $80,000.

Louis will be at the ringside. He watched Braddock go through his paces at Pompton Lakes and although he says Jim looks in better trim than in the June fight, Louis believes Farr will win. Most experts predict the fight will go the limit with Farr the winner.

Loss for Braddock will mean the end of his ring career. Jim says he means to go on fighting indefinitely, but Manager Joe Gould insists he'll make him hang up the gloves if he's on the losing end. Most Braddock backers believe Jim's superior punching power and the long left he used to win the title from Max Baer will tip the scales in his favor.

That Braddock still can sock was demonstrated against Louis when he floored the negro with a right in the first round.

Farr is eight years the younger, faster, and a good punch absorber. He will be seconded by Doc Bagley, who formerly landed Gene Tunney.

Eddie Hogan, Waterbury (Conn.) heavyweight, and Bob Tow of Washington will fight the eight-round semifinal.

Harold Brady handled the ball in a manner that would make any coach proud. Steakley, Rice forward, proved a constant threat on the floor.

There was considerable rough playing and several personal fouls were called. Ray Hamilton, Arkansas center, was taken out of the game midway the second half when the fourth personal was called on him. Leslie Huggard replaced him, only to be substituted for by Wilfred Thurpe. Rice's Kleimworth had his fourth personal marked against him just as the final whistle blew, and Arkansas's Neil Martin was given two free throws as the crowd poured on to the court. He missed both.

Donaldson, Parker guard who substituted for Robbins, showed well in the few minutes he played, ringing a basket the first time he handled the ball.

Both squads had their moments throughout the encounter.

BIRTH OF A SONG

ANN RONELL was born in Omaha, Neb., and like all the well-bred young children of her time, was soon devoting hours to practicing the piano.

Her love for music took many forms—from ballet dancing, to playing the pipe organ, to writing of songs.

As music editor of the magazine, she came to New York to interview George Gershwin—and his interest in her music determined the course of her career.

New York proved to be a hard nut to crack, as it has to so many youthful aspirants. She taught the piano, accompanied rehearsals by Marilyn Miller and Dorothy Stone, and continued to write and offer her songs unsuccessfully to publishers.

Irving Berlin praised her talents. Paul Whiteman and others performed "Willow Weep For Me", "Candy Parade", "Rain On The Roof". Then came a commission from Walt Disney for Mickey Mouse's first birthday, and "Mickey Mouse and Minnie's In Town" was created.

Her collaboration on "Who's Afraid Of The Big Bad Wolf" followed. By this time she was an established member of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, with a large repertoire of available songs, and a future assured and secured.

Freshman Squad at U. of A. Promising

Cage Team Is One of the Best in History of School

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark.—Boasting an array of former high school cage stars, the University of Arkansas freshman basketball team promises to be one of the best yearling aggregations in the school's history.

Led by John Adams, high-scoring guard from Beebe, and John Freiberger, 6-foot 8-inch center from Texas, the frosh have already won four games scoring a total of 206 points to 136 for their opponents. Freiberger has used his superior height under the basket with good results, while Adams' long shots have been little short of sensational.

Aiding Adams and Freiberger in the freshman attack are A. E. Mitchell of Rogers; Gerald Gammill, high scorer from El Dorado; and Howard Hickey, former Clarksville star.

Coach Gene Lambert of the Razorback freshman quintet believes that his squad will furnish excellent replacements for next year's varsity. If the freshman are as good as they appear now, the loss of Don Lockard, Jack Robbins and other stars will not be as serious as it might appear.

Four games remain of the frosh schedule. They will play a return engagement with the Tulsa University freshmen February 8 at Tulsa, and the following night meet the Oklahoma Aggie yearlings at Stillwater. The Aggies will come to Fayetteville for a game February 18. The final game for the yearlings will be at home February 22 against the East Oklahoma Teachers quintet.

Final Home Game for Two Athletes

Reese and Ramsey Bring Careers to Close on Home Court

The Camden High School Panthers, boasting one of the best cage squads in recent years, clash with the undefeated Hope High School Bobcats here Friday night in a conference cage battle.

The Panthers, led by the White brothers, have three players towering over the six-foot mark. The game starts at 7:30 p. m. A capacity crowd is expected.

Last for Reese, Ramsey

The game will mark the final appearance before home folks of the brilliant athletic careers of Hugh Reese and Percy Ramsey. Coach Foy Hammons has promised that both players will see the greater part of the game in the thick of battle.

Reese and Ramsey, probably the best pair of ends the local school ever produced, will leave next Thursday to enroll at the University of Arkansas at Fayetteville.

Both Reese and Ramsey played four years as regulars on the high school football team and are bringing to a close three years on the basketball court. Fans are expected to give them an ovation when they leave the floor tonight.

Reese, Honor Student

Reese was recently voted a member of the National Honor Society, highest ranking honor for a high school student. Reese qualified for the honor by climbing to the upper brackets scholastically, for outstanding service rendered to the school, and for outstanding leadership and character.

Ramsey also is a ranking student scholastically as well as a brilliant athlete on the football field and basketball court. Ramsey served as president of the student body last year.

Miss Beryl Henry, superintendent of schools, praised the two students Friday "for their good, clean sportsmanship, character, leadership and service rendered to the school." She forecast that both would make good at the state university.

Two May Follow

Since Reese and Ramsey turned University-of-Arkansas-minded, there is a strong possibility that Freeman Stone, all-state tackle for three years, and Vasco Bright, all-state quarterback last season, will follow their teammates to the Razorback campus.

Both Stone and Bright also excel on the basketball court as well as on the football field.

All four athletes have turned down attractive offers from several universities and colleges of the South. Only this week scouts were here from University of Alabama and George Washington University of Washington, D. C.

All Mine's Size

Personal Exemptions

In addition to the personal exemption of $1,000 for single persons and $2,500 for married persons living together and for heads of families, a taxpayer is entitled to a credit of $400 for each dependent, defined by income tax law and regulations as a person under 18 years of age or incapable of self-support because mentally or physically defective. The term "mentally or physically defective" means not only cripples and those mentally defective but persons in ill health and the aged.

In order to be entitled to the $400 credit, the taxpayer must furnish the dependent his or her chief support. The credit is based upon actual financial dependency and not mere legal dependency. For example, a father whose children receive half or more of their support from a trust fund or other separate source is not entitled to the credit.

Neither relationship nor residence is a factor in the allowance of the $400 credit for a dependent. The taxpayer and the dependent may be residents of different cities. If husband and wife both contribute to the support of a dependent, the $400 credit may be taken by the one contributing the chief support, and may not be divided between them.

A single person who supports in his home an aged mother is entitled not only to the $400 credit for a dependent but also to the personal exemption of $2,500 as the head of a family. A widower supporting under similar circumstances a dependent child under 18 years of age also is entitled to the personal exemption of $2,500 as the head of a family, plus the $400 credit for a dependent.

Under the Revenue Act of 1936 both the personal exemption and the credit for dependents are required to be prepared where the status of the taxpayer changed during the year.

A Million-Dollar Plane and It's Just a Model

Building the beautifully rounded "mockup" plane shown in the top photo cost $1,000,000, but the plane will never fly. This four-engine, full-scale "dummy" was built by Boeing engineers for TWA. Now, approved, it will be the model from which six "Superskyliners" will be built for delivery to TWA this summer, carrying 33 passengers by day and 16 at night, in berths as shown at left, below. Nine chaise lounge chairs, spaced by observation windows in a separate lounging compartment, provide ultra-luxury. The huge cabin, as shown right, below, is 11 feet in diameter and 7½ feet high, 32½ feet long—larger than in any land-type passenger plane in use in the United States, or under construction. Indirect lighting is featured. Faster coast-to-coast schedules will be possible with these ships.

Plans for Modern Type Barn

PLAN No. 70296

SMALL UNIT BARN

PLAN SERVICE

UNIVERSITY OF ARKANSAS COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE

Barn planning consists of the adaptation of animal and feed storage spaces into an attractive structure, with ample strength, but without waste of floor, wall, or roof areas, since almost every barn must be adapted to the individual farm for sizes and number of animals. The plans available in the University of Arkansas College of Agriculture's plan service are adaptable in size, and the capacity may be increased or decreased without any change in the construction methods. The plan shown, No. 70296, is for six to ten animals, and feed and hay space. For four or five animals, plan No. 70147 should be used. For a larger, general purpose farm, accommodating more than ten animals, plan No. 70324 is recommended. These plans, designed by the College of Agriculture to meet Arkansas farm conditions, are available through your County Agent.

Wannamaykumpnuvut — That's a Fighting Word

NEW YORK—(AP)—When you're in a New York bar and want another drink, you tell the bartender, "Fill-a-duppleen!" he thinks your pupils look too dilated, he replies, "Youvadanuffbud." Don't argue, or he might ask, "Wannamaykumpnuvut?" That formidable-looking word is defined in the WPA's "1938 Almanac for New Yorkers" as "an invitation to a brawl."

Other definitions of New Yorkese, upheld by the almanac editors as being "at least as frisky and full-flavored as ever proper English could be," are: Bruykidup, braykidup: Policeman's suggestion to any group of loiterers. Wazzitupuh? Delicate rebuff to an excessively curious questioner. Takadiway: "Please remove it from sight immediately."

Dombeeztupid: Expressing specific disagreement, with undertones of disparagement.

Ladderide: Warning not to pursue the subject further.

Whyntchulokeryagony? Rhetorical expression of relief used by motorists esp.) after a near-collision.

Whackladajinnoodissat? "Did the New York National league baseball team win today, I hope?" (Except in Brooklyn)

Sowaddiyasayibabe, or Hozzabotulbabe: Prelude to romance.
